

TLS 15

The 15th meeting of the Texas Linguistic Society will take place October 24–26, 2014 at the University of Texas at Austin. Our keynote speakers include T. Florian Jaeger (University of Rochester), Philippe Schlenker (New York University), and David I. Beaver (University of Texas at Austin).

Call For Papers

We invite papers from all areas of linguistics, but especially encourage submissions relevant to our special session, entitled “Experimental Advantages.” This session will consider the importance of experimental evidence in theories of syntax and semantics, and focus on research that highlights the unique advantages of the experimental environment, as opposed to other sources of data.

Requirements:

- Maximum 500 words for the text of the abstract. The abstract title, text, examples, figures, and references must not exceed two pages.
- All abstracts will be reviewed anonymously. The abstract should not include the authors name, affiliation, or other identifying information; be careful that your name and email are not automatically embedded by your word processor.
- To submit your abstract, send it in PDF format to tls.conference@gmail.com. Include the paper title and names of all authors and their affiliations in the body of the email.

Deadline: May 15, 2014

Notifications of acceptance or rejection will be sent out by July 1, 2014

Presentations will be 20 minutes in length, with 10 minutes for questions.

This Call for Papers can also be found at the conference website:

<http://uts.cc.utexas.edu/~tls/2014tls/>

Addendum 1: Maximum of two abstracts per individual; maximum of one solo abstract per individual. (April 24, 2014)